Missing/Incomplete Assessments

Saint John High School expects that students will come to school daily, do the work assigned to them and complete the work by the set deadlines. Students will complete tests on the day they are given.

Come to School – Do Your Work – Be Successful

Incomplete assignments are a significant cause of students not being successful. To assist students in improving work habits:

A mark of zero will be recorded in PowerSchool on the assignment due date to indicate that the work has not been submitted.

Consequences for incomplete work may include:

- Students reporting to the subject teacher to complete the assessment.
- Subject teacher communicating with home.
- Administrative detention
- Loss of extra-curricular privileges
- In-school suspension

All late assignments must be accompanied by a late assignment reflection form at the time the work is submitted.

Once the close date has passed, teachers will not be required to accept the assessment, and a comment will be placed in Powerschool beside the zero.

INC will be used on a report card if a student has not sufficiently demonstrated the course content.

Note: submitting/turning in blank assignments is academic dishonesty.
